THE TARIFF BILL.

MR. MORRISON OPPOSED TO FUR THER DISCUSSION.

He Thinks That There is No Use in Going Over the Same Old Story-Sanator Vest Seriously Ill-Letters From Savannah in Favor of Continued Silver Coinage.

WASHINGTON, February 19 .- [Special.] Representative Morrison said this evening that he did not think it was the intention of the ways and means committee to listen to oral arguments on the tariff bill.

"I cannot speak positively for the other members," said he, "but my own opinion is that we have heard all that is necessary in the matter, and that it is no use to delay action by hearing delegations who will only repeat the old arguments over again. They made their statements before the tariff commission, and made them again before the committee two years ago: and as there has been no change in the tariff since that time, I don't see why, with the conditions exactly the same, they should be gone over to us again. There are some special interests of course, whose trades have grown up or changed materially since the last hearing, and they, of course, should have the opportunity to explain how the bill affects them. As to any general discussion, however, I don't think it

The refusal of the committee not to allow hearings on the bill will be a severe disappointment to the iron, steel and glass manufacturers of Pennsylvania, who had made complete preparations to send down strong delega tions to represent the loss which would ensue if the bill should pass. Delegations from Pittsburg, comprising manufacturers of pig, bar, plate and sheet iron, nails and tin plates wire rods and wire and the various kinds of steel, have been writing to the republican members of the committee to secure dates for a hearing. Their letters show as much interest in the bill as was manifested two years ago. The republicans are likely to make this effort in their favor, but the committee will probably be guided by Mr. Morrison's wishes in the

LETTERS FROM SAVANNAH.

Letters received from Savannah by member of the Georgia delegation show that the petitioners for the discontinuance of the coinage of the silver dollar, whose memorial Senator Brown presented, did not represent the opin ions of the majority of the people of Savannah. These letters indicate a strong desire on the part of the majority of the people of that town in favor of letting the Bland act alone.

The secretary of the treasury is preparing a letter to be sent to congsess next week, giving the present circulation of the standard silver dollar. This will show that the number of silver dollars in actual circulation has steadily increased since the first of last July, which i taken as the beginning of the period reviewed.

The serious illness of Senator Vest, of Missouri, excites the graveit apprehensions of his

THE BLAIR BILL.

Mr. Frants a Believer in Unlimited Taxing Power.

WASHINGTON, February 19 .- In the senate Mr. Manderson offered a resolution directing report to the senate the facts surrounding the killing of Captain Emmet Crawford, U.S. A said to have been slain on or about January 10th, 1886, by Mexican troops, and to report what steps were being taken for the punishment, by the Mexican government, of those guilty of the alleged outrage; also whether reparation and indemnity should not be made to those who suffered, and supple explanation and anology. and ample explanation and apology to the United States for an apparently gross insult. In offering the resolution, Mr. Manderson said it was due to the United States, not less than to the relatives of the deceased, that inquiry should be made as to the killing Crawford, Mr. Manders the efficial report of Lieutenant Maus, I. A., on the subject, and maintained that if facts were therein correctly set forth, they constituted a very severe reflection on the Mexican troops.

The resolution, with Mr. Manderson's assent. was referred to the committee on foreign rela

Among the bills introduced and appropriately referred was one by Mr. Edmunds relative to the eight-hour law. He said the bill related to the letter carriers hours of labor. Those hours seemed to be really in excess of what human nature could endure.

On motion of Mr. Eustis, the resolution of inquiry heretofore offered by him, relating to the New Orleans sub treasury and its treat-ment of the silver dollar, was taken from the calendar. Mr. Teller 's amendment was agreed to, extending the inquiry into the caus defalcation alleged to have occurred in New Orleans sub treasury, in connection Orleans sub treasury, in connection with andling of the silver dollars.

Mr. Eustis's resolution, thus amended, was

THE EDUCATION BILL.

The education bill was placed before the senate and Mr. Evarts took the floor in its advocacy. After paying a glowing tribute to the philanthropy and foresight of Peabody, in establishing the well known "educational fund" for the south, Mr. Evarts said that in his connection with the administration of that fund, he saw most encouraging manifestations of hunger and thirst, for knowledge on the part of the ignorant classes in the south, and praiseworthy zeal on the part of the intelligent classes of the south that education should become general. Mr. Evarts had no misgivings as to the faithful application of the fund provided for by the bill under considera-tied. He thought the objections made to the measure on constitutional grounds were based on a parrow interpretation of the constitution.

Mr. Everts quoted the clause of the consti-tution setting forth that congress should have power to levy and impose taxes, to pay debts, and "provide for the common defense and general welfare." This he construed to be "a trust power" in legal interpretation, and the trust covered as well "general welfare" as "common defense;" He inquired how the "common defense;" He inquired how the United States could escape the execution of the trust as to "general welfare" any more than they could escape the execution of the trust as to the "common defense." That trust as to the "common defense." That "trust power" was unlimited except as to the subjects to be resorted to for revenue. The amounts raised from those subjects were raised only for one purpose, namely, to be exercised in a large scale of governmental application to this trust power. That trust power was to "pay debts and provide for the common defense and general welfare of the United States."

Mr. Evarts saw no distinction as to the tarms of this trust between the money rejudy by touof this trust between the money raised by tax-ation and money raised by the sale of public land. What was the power of taxation given to coppress for, he asked, if not that its results should be used for the common defense and general welfare. Education was surely something that must be cared for in connection with the "common defense" and general welfare. Was the necessity for the building of a fort in Boston harbor, or at New York narrows, or was the necessity for the building of jetties at the mouth of the Missis-

pi more of necessity, more national, more iversal than the necessity to provide for the nation produced by the greatest transaction that has happened in civilization and changed the condition of the people of this country?"

Mr. Morgan said he would be one of many millions of the American people to regret that one of the greatest of American lawyers should thus have declared himself in favor of the absolutism of congres. The distinguished senator from New York (Evarts,) had here declared that after all there was really no restraint in the constitution upon the power of taxation by congress. That homorable senator had with a very line hand chiselled away upon the rights of conhand chiselled away upon the rights of congress and the people until he had merged them into one beautiful, symetrical nonentity. That honorable artist had now broken down all distinction in constitutional law, and congress could, by its supreme will, declare all measures that it is pleased to pass to be for the general welfare. Mr. Morgan sawa great distinction between the application of moneys raised by taxation and moneys raised from public lands. Mr. Ingalls said: "Admitting that the con-stitution contained the dormant and sleeping lower claimed for it by the advocates of this bill, the practical question was why should that power be evoked? Why should we turn over the common schools system of the country to the contains system of the contribution to the contribution of the general government? The south was unjust to itself. One of the most distressing symptoms about the south was its want of self-reliance—its disposition to call on the general government for assistance. Nothing made men or nations so strong as the exercise of their own faculties. The south had not been impoverished by the war. The ownership of four millions of men had simply been transferred from their masters to themselves. A free man, however, was better than a slave, and the south was, therefore, not poorer but richer for the change. Mr. Ingalls read an article from a southern paper, showing that since 1879 the assessed value of southern property had increased by $900,000,000, and that about $500,000,000 worth of railroads had that about $500,000,000 worth of railroads had been built, and that in every other direction material progress there was making rapid strides. "Men of the south," said he, "is that a true story? Is there any senator from the south who will rise in his place and say that the condition of the south is not immeasurably better than it was before the war?"

Mr. Riddleberger replied that he, for one, would say that the south was not in as good a condition as before the war, though he did not condition as before the war, though he did not regret the result of the war. Mr. Ingalls saw no occasion for despondency as to the condition of the colored men. Nothing in history could compare to the advance they had made. If the object of the bill, how-ever, was to promote the education of the lliterate class between the ages of six and twenty-one, and if the bill were so amended, no senator would vote with a wider liberality han he to accomplish that result. Mr. Hoar said that it was he who drafted the

Mr. Hoar said that it was he who drafted the first of these education bills, ten or fifteen years ago, and the proposition had never come from the people of the south. It was a northern idea and was suggested by northern sentiment. But three southern democratic votes had been given to the first bill introduced by him in congress in 1872 or thereabouts. He had listened with admiration to the slowest repearing of the admiration to the eloquent remarks of the senator from Kansas (Ingalls), but that senator erred in supposing this to be a question of north and south. The present bill proceeded upon the ground that in a republic in which every citizen has an equal share in the gov-ernment, in which the vote of the plantation negro equalled the vote of the merchant prince, equention was indispensable to the con-tinued existence of liberty. It was because the society of the south was our society, the interest of the south our interest; it was because, in the sublime trial which ended in 865, it was determined that hereafter and crever this was to be national, and not an ag-regation of warring and conflicting communities, held together by a feeble band; that we had the right to demand that the national re-sources should be poured out to their fullest extent to secure to every American citizen the intelligence that was necessary in each, for the common benefit of all. Mr. Hoar cited figures to show that under Ingalls' theory, Mississippi would get fifteen times as much money from the bill as would Massachusetts, while by the bill as it stood it would get only four times as much.

Mr. Ingalls-Nothing lies like figures.

Langhter.]
Mr. Hoar—Sometimes people lie under misapprehension from not having read figures be-fore making speeches. [Renewed laughter.] Mr. Hoar agreed that the future of the colored race was a bright one: but without regard to where the blame rested for the ignorance of the colored people he (Hoar) belived that if the general government did not assist in the work of their education, that the work would be postponed to the remote future. The white democrats of the south had seuse enough to answer for the suppression of an honest vote, which was one of the worst of crimes, but whatever may have been the faults of hose people, Mr. Hoar said, they could not be until counted with seeking by "false pre-tenses" to get money from the treasury under his bill, or with having uttered in the the nation any pusillanimous cry for help. This was a northern idea, and was based on the principle that the eye cannot say to the "I have no need of thee."

Mr. Harris agreed with Messrs. Morgan, Coke and Maxey, that congress had no power under the constitution to levy taxes and appropriate money so collected to the purely state purpose of maintaining common schools.

But if the question were free from this constitutional objection he (Harris) would still oppose it for the reason that the money to be appropriated for this purpose, whether taken from the treasury of the several states, or from the federal treasury, was drawn by tayation from the pockets of the as drawn by taxation from the pockets of the cople of the several states and territories. As the people had to pay these $77,000,000, it be-ame a matter of interest to them to ascertain e method by which it could be paid with the least inconvenience and injury. If collected under the direct tax system of the states, every dollar from the earnings of the people would go into the treasury, and each citizen would ave contributed in proportion to his wealth and his ability to pay. Not so, owever, under the federal system of taxation, about two-thirds of our revenue ing collected under the federal tariff laws so that the people were compelled to pay large amounts in the way of bounties to protected manufacturers, and the poorest man was comelled to pay as much as the wealthiest. On the score, therefore, of economy, as well as of right, Mr. Harris would leave the matter of common school education to the states, where t legitimately and exclusively belonged. He would never consent to see the strong ha federal power exerted in the state for the pose of controlling or interfering with its demestic affairs. Each state was the best judge of its own educational interests.

The debate was continued by Messrs. Morgan, Ingalls, Wilson (Maryland). Riddleberger, Hoar and Harris. The debate then closed for the day.

PEDDLING OUT PARDONS. Mr. Edmunds, from the committee on judi-iary, reported favorably bills to remove the collical disabilities of Alexander P. Stewart, of Mississippi : Thomas L. Rosser, of Virginia and Edward G. W. Butler, of Missouri.

The bills were at once passed. Mr. Edmunds remarking that one of the parties was an aged gentleman, and desired before leaving this world to be at peace with the United States.

Mr. Beck said he did not know of any maller business for the judiciary committee than to be peddling out removals of disabili-than to be pedding out removals of disabilities in this way.

Mr. Edmunds replied that all that the United States asked of any person, before relieving him of the penalty imposed on him by the constitution for violating his oath and deserting the constitution that he had sworn to support and making war against the United States, was that he should present a respectful petition showing that he was ready to give up fighting the United States, and to pay the debts he owed for money received in his offi-cial character. If the senator from Kentucky thought that to be "peddling out" removals referred to he was entitled to his opinion.

Mr. Beck replied that welve years ago the house of representatives had passed a bill removing all disabilities, and before that time moving all disabilities, and before that time the senate had done so. It did not happen that both houses had done it at the same session. He insisted upon characterizing the present mode as "peddling out," and supposed that in the present condition of the senate nothing better could be expected.

The assistant treasurer for the city of Richmond applied to State Attorney General Ayers for his opinion as to what the United States supreme court decisions left the state able to do, and that officer rendered his opinion a week ago, but all efforts to procure a copy of it for publication were unsuccossful. The Reformer, a weekly paper of this city, has succeeded in getting the opinion, and will publish it in full to-morrow. The substance of the opinion is that when a person tendering takes the risk of the coupon being genuine. If the offi-cer refuses the tender and levies for tax, he cer refuses the tender and levies for tax, he then takes the risk of the coupon being spurious. If, in a suit thereafter brought against the officer for unlawful levy, it should be proved that the coupon tendered was spurious, the plaintiff would fail in his suit, but if in that suit it should be proved that the coupon was genuine, the officer would have been a naked trespasser in loving, and liable been a naked trespasser in lovying, and liable for damages. Notices will be posted up by many operatives on their tenants in a few days, making a final demand upon their tenants to vacate their property on March first. This morning about one o'clock, four Hungarians, armed rifles, revolvers, hatchets and clubs, marched with precision military through Mount Pleasant to the Standard works. It had been reported that work was to begin today, and the parade was for the purpose of preventing resumption. No attempt, however, was made to start the works. The magnitude of the strike is greater than many people imagine. The amount of capital invested in the coke business from Pleasant Unity to Fair Chance. would reach $18,000,000. This great sum does not include speculative investments in coal land, but is the aggregate of the cost price of the different plants of the region. Not only is no interest being made on this great total, but on the other hand, more capital is being expended in keeping the property intact from external danger from strikers and internal danger from flooding. JOLIET, February 19 .- A remarkable phase f the convict labor problem was presented here today. The state penitentiary authorities seem to have a surplus of convict labor. Advertisements have appeared in half a dozen of the leading papers for a month past, offering men to be contracted for to the highest bidder for from five to eight years. Today the board of commissioners met at the penitentiary to open the bids for convict labor, but no bids were received, much to the surprise of the board. The members concluded that the agitation of the convict labor question has intimidated contractors to such an extent as to cause convict labor to b placed at a discount. The authorities are in a quendary as to do what to do with the men. It is thought that the convict labor question will be submitted to a vote of the people of the state at the next general election, and that it will be abolished in this state.

As the party approached Mrs. Waldo was trying to ascend the face of the rock, which is nearly perpendicular, and they called to her to hold on until they could come to her assistance. At that moment she was seen to slip on the rock, and fall headlong down the precipice, striking among he rocks at the feet of her friends. She live but a few minutes after being picked up. Mrs. Waldo was thirty-five years old, and leaves two young children. It is thought that her nsanity dates from the birth of her last child three months ago. BLOOMINGTON, Ills., February 19.—David holtz, a maniac, who last night fired his barn and shot two persons, was supposed to have escaped to the timber, but this morning the charred body of the lunatic was found in the smoking ashes, with his revolver and gun barrel beside him. His brother, Levi Sholtz, is unburt, the revolver ball lodging in his cloth-ing. Mrs. Levi Sholtz received thirteen wounds in the back, from a gun charged with missiles, ranging from bird shot to rifle balls. She will die. Her daughter received a bullet in the arm from the same shot.

Hanged by the Mob.

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., February 19.—Three weeks ago Joe Burns, a repulsive looking negro, committed an outrageous assault upon one Miss Fellers, of Baltimore, while on the way from the railroad depot at this place to a friend's house a short distance outside of town. This morning Burns paid the penalty of his crime. At 12:45 o'clock a body of masked men, numbering from seventy-five to a hundred, appreached the jail, and without much ado, took Burns therefrom and dragged him to a point two miles outside the limits of the borough with hanged him to a tree.

London, February 19.—As a result of the statement that a well known baronet had assisted Hangman Berry in hanging the three Netherby burglars, Sir Claude Decrespigny, in an interview today, admitted that he was the one alluded to. He said that as he would probably be sheriff of Essex, he desired to gain experience in order that he might be prepared, in case he should be obliged to act himself in the absence of a hangman. He slept in prison during the night, pinioned one of the culprits himself, and generally assisted Cerry. The latter considered Sir Claude a plucky individual, who does his task well. Socialism in Prussia.

BEBLIN. February 19.—In the reichstag to-day. Herr Von Putkamer, Prussian minister of the interior, in defending an anti-socialist law, said the measure was not intended to stifle the discussion of socialist questions, but was merely to prevent the discussion of such questions in a revolutionary spirit for purposes of agitation. The government, he said, depended on the fidelity of the nation against socialism. Dr. Wondkast favored the measure, but proposed mendments mitigating its severity ments of the Peast-Personal, Etc MACON, Ga., February 19 .- [Special.]-This morning a railroad man came to police headquarters and complained that another railroader had alienated the affections of his wife. He was told that he would have to get some sort of warrant before he could have the man arrested. The man against whom the complaint was made was arrested and brought bere Judge M. R. Freeman, who released him on his own recognizance. The irate husband says that the offender started with the wife of the first mentioned to go to Montgomery, but that instead of going they came and put up at a hotel, where they spent the night together. At an early hour this morning the wronged man was on the rampage with a pistol, swearing vengeance on the heads of the pair. The entire thing is a matter of an exceedingly unwholesome sort, and for awhile promised to develop into a regular sensation.

The railroader whose wife proved unfaithful was arrested by Officers Thorpe and Thomas at the carshed this evening, crazed with grief

Last Sabbath was a lovely day, and after

Stephenson, we took a stroll over to the trestle a mile and a quarter from town. Mr. Hodges pointed to a hill on the left of the trestle and remarked: "On that hill used to stand the house of Elias Sanders, the father of Tom, Calvin, Prep, etc. The old line of Elbert and Franklin ran right through his kitchen. It was also the line of Wilkes and Franklin counties before Elbert was cutoff, and when Elias Sanders died at an advanced age, his body was builed under the kitchen—suppose we go over there and see if we can find body was builed under the kitchen-suppose we go over there and see if we can find the grave." We agreed, and found four graves with nude stone headstones with no marks and the dismantled chimney of the kitchen. The Sanders family is remarkable for longevity Tem (Kit) is now nearly ninety-seven, and his father, Elias, was near the same age when his spirit bade the hills added and mounted upward. Rev. Calvin Sanders, recently de ceased, was over eighty when he died. Mr. Hodges related the following incident concern-ing him: A dispute as to certain boundary lines was being tried in court, Judge Pottle presiding. Calvin Sanders was on the wit-ness stand, and the question was asked how long the land lying just below the trestle had been in cultivation. "Sixty-eight years this spring," answered the witness, a stalwart looking man with hair as black as a raven's wing and never a streak of gray. "What did you say?" asked the judge, doubting if he heard aright. "Sixty-eight years," came the answer promptly. "How do you know this land was in cultivation for six-"Because sixty-ei, ht years ty-eight years?" ago this spring I helped my father Looking around over the hills, Mr. Hodges emarked: "Way back in the past these hills remarked: were the scene of a funny incident. A man named Colson was a great rogue, and it got to be that when anything was stolen it was cer-tain to be laid on Colson, and the mark was hit oftener than missed. On one occasion some bacon was stolen and of course they laid it to Colson, and discovered it secreted in a hollow tree where Colson had put it. The people banded together and determined to hunt Colson down and punish him. They were soon in hot pursuit, but they found that Colson was as swift of foot and as long-winded as a fox-hound. These hills were covered with open woods and a man could be seen a long ways off. Colson soon found that his pur: suers were no match for a foot race, and would show himself upon the top of a hill and yell—"Whoop e-ee! here I am!" Away they would fly after him, when he would show himself on the apex of another hill and "Whoope-ee!" again, and he continued this game of hide-and-seek until his pursuers gave up the hase in disgust.

Mr. Hodges gave us an interesting item about Parker's mill, on Shoal creek, in this county. He said that upon or near the site of these mills used to stand a mill, the property of Thomas Peter Carnes, in honor of whom Carnesville was named. Carnes lived there for several years. He came from the north a poor lad, and it is said was an illegitimate son of the famous Washington Irving. By energy and industry he worked himself up until he became a judge in the superior court: another happy illustra tion of the fact that-

From the Irwinton Appeal. A few days ago Colonel New. Murphy, of this county, received a communication from a lawyer in Covington, Ga., asking for informa-tion concerning the heirs of one William Potts, who, he stated, had been declared by the court of England to be the rightful heir of sixty million of dollars. The attorney states that investigation has shown by attempts to procure the money by two parties already, bearing the name of Potts, one William Potts and by W. F. He had a brother who was drowned in the Ohio river. This Wm. Potts married here, and Mrs. Colson, of this county, is an offspring of that marriage. To her will revert this enormous fortune, if secured. This Wm. Potts is the only man bearing that name who has ever lived in this county and he was known to have had wealthy relatives in England. Mrs. Colson and her family are poor but worthy people, and this freak of fortune is romanticly strange. We trust there may be no trouble in their identify-ing themselves as the heirs, and obtaining ing themselves this property.

Notes From an Old Paper

One of the sprightliest towns on the line of the Brunswick and Western road is Alapaha. Situated in the center of large turpentine and saw mill industries, and surrounded by a fine farming cour try, it is naturally a good business point. The citizens are temperate, moral and religious, and are proud of their little town. Several new houses have recently gone up, and others are in process of erection. Notable among the new houses is the residence of Dr. J. A. Fogle. In the doctor's elegant home, there hangs a framed copy of the Ulster county Gazette, published at Kingston, N. Y., in 1800. This old paper contains the account of the death and uneral obsequies of General Washington and preserved for that reason. Judging from hat the paper has to say, his funeral must have been a tame affair compared with the re-cent funerals of Grant. Hendricks or Hancock. While looking over this old paper we found the following blood-curdling advertisement: "FOR SALE,

A STOUT, HEALTHY, ACTIVE, NEGRO WENCH. "Any person inclined to purchase, may know the particulars by applying to JOHN SCHOONMAKER, JR, At Rochester, Nov. 15, 1799."

Mad at his Local Editor. CALHOUN, Ga., February 17 .- Editors Constitution: In your paper of today I find the follow ing taken from the Calhoun Times ing taken from the Calhoun Times:

"Mark Matthews, who has just returned from a collecting tour up in the 24th district, says that a few days ago a wild hog lacerated a pack a hounds so that they will never be of service again, and that deer and turkey are found in such large numbers that the veople have to drive them out of their fields in order to cultivate them. From his description one would think it a land of peach and honey and wild hogs. He brought back the sheekles." Now, it is certainly very difficult to determine what the writer of this nonsense meant by "to cultivate them," that is, whether he meant to cultivate the fields, or the deer and turkey. But accept either or both as his meaning, and yet I desire to say most seriously, that I made no such statements, but that they are purely and wholly the productions—and about fair samples of the productions-of the ponderous brain of the editor of the Times-that they are atrocious slanders, and unmitigated blankety blanks, and that the fellow whose mind is capable of conceiving and bringing forth such stuff, deserves to be sent to the-legislature. Respectfully MARK MATTHEWS

The case of Frank Williams came to a close in Pulaski superior court last Saturday at mid-night. It took an entire week to try the case. A jury was secured by noon on Wednesday, and the examination of witnesses and argu-

and the examination of witnesses and argument in the case occupied the balance of the week. At, midnight on Saturday the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty. Williams was at once discharged from custody. A warrant hade discharged from custody. A warrant hade been sworn out to hold him as a witness against Trammell, and the warrant was in the hands of an officer, but by some means Williams managed to escape from the room and immediately fled. Williams was considered the most important witness against Trammell, as it was the confession of Wilfiams that led to the arrest of himself and John Trammell as the murderers of old man William mell as the murderers of old man William mell as the murderers of old man William Johnson last June. One Monday morning the case of Trammell was called and a motion made to continue the case and allow the prisoner to give bond. Judge Kibbee allowed the motion, and fixed the bond at $5,000. The bond was immediately made by Mr. W. L. Trammell, brother of the defendant, and by his uncles, Messrs. W. W. Harrell, of Dodge county, and Levi H., L. L. and John W. Harrell, of Pulaski. her death, and, indeed, threats of lynching were indulged in. The husband was subsequently tried for her murder, found guilty, and sentenced for a life term in the penitentiary. He is now serving out his sentence at the brick yard of Bondurant & Jopling. A representative of the Evening News visited him upon his invitation, and obtained from him his version of the whole affair, as follows: "My name is A. G. Inman, of Emanuel county, Georgia, m thirty years of age, was married and have four children. I am imprisoned for life, having been found guilty in June, 1883, of killing my wife. The evidence against me was entirely circumstantial, and contained not one single fact. The circumstances of my wife's death are these: I had some business down in the woods where I was having rails cut. My wife accompanied me on horseback, as she was an expert rider. In walking the horse through a path several pine burns fell from a tree, striking the animal of the hear which then reade him views and pine burrs fell from a tree, striking the anima on the back, which then made him give a sud-den start, throwing my wife from the saddle with her foot caught in the stirrup and her body hauging. The horse dashed through the woods, and my wife struck a stump a severe blow, which loosened her from the stirrup, and she fell to the ground. I ran to her, pick-d her up and she packs to me; she then her ed her up and she spoke to me; she then became faint, when I placed my coat under her head and ran for a doctor and other assistance. She died shortly afterward. An examination of her hurts showed her hand mangled, one arm hurt, her right eye knocked out and a severe blow on the back of her head. These are the circumstances of her death.' The Evening News then asked Inman why he should be suspected of her death? and Inman continued:

Inman continued:
"My wife had considerable property, probably $10,000 worth, and also held a life insurance policy on herself and I held one on my mother. Besides I had over a thousand dollars in eash in my trunk and notes against citizens. I was thus persecuted by some of my relations and other parties, to get possession of this money. They even got out against me a writ of lunacy, and tried to get me to acknowledge the killing so as to get me in the asylum, that they might divide my property. They worked up such a prejudice against me that I had no showing whatever before the court which tried me, and even in my st fered with that I cou stored to their rightful property,"

"Why don't you submit your case to the grand jury of your county, with all the circumstances of the case?" asked the reporter. "I have drawn up a statement," said Inman, "and have asked my lawyers to have it preand have asked by lawyers to have the pre-sented, but they require money in advance to take my case, and as I have none now, I still remain at the mercy of these relatives, who have despoiled me of all my property, and have divided it out, I still have hope, and expect to get the facts before the governor and be par-doned, and then I'll make them disgorge every cent."

The interview lasted nearly an hour, when Captain Starnes told the gentleman in stripes he had but ten minutes for dinner, and the conversation then ceased. We know nothing about the facts of the case, but if there is any foundation for the statement of Inman, th matter should be investigated.

ATHENS, Ga., February 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Richardson, of Watkinsville, mother of Dr. Richardson, of Atlanta, died yesterday morning. Two Bright Women.

"Passing a bank the other day on Broadway, ays a writer in the New York Mail and Expres saw Ella Wheeler Wilcox, author of the Poem of Passion, going in with a check-book. That re minded me what a man from the west said abou her excellent business qualities. When a poo her excellent business qualities, when a poor girl, dependent upon her own pen for support, her note was considered as good as Vanderbilt's. She went to a tank once to borrow some money, and gave her note for ninety days. When she returned to pay it promptly the banker, who knew her frem her childhood, said: 'We do not ask any interest from you; we are glad to accommodate you.' To which the young poetess replied: 'But that would not be an accommodation, kind as you want to be. I may desire to borrow money again, and I want to feel that I am paying the bank as good interest as a man would pay. I wish to be considered as reliable as a man in business.' He concluded by saying that her motto had been to pay in full from the start, and half her success doubtless was due to it. G. W. Carleton, who published her novel, 'Mal Moulee,'' told me that she was the best business literary woman or man with whom he ever 'had dealings. He said that she could draw up an agreement that would stand every time in law without the usual legal phrastology. In writing to her to attend to any matters he could mention five or six things, but to others he usually wrote a separate letter for each thing he wanted fone or else it would be neggirl, dependent up on her own peu for support, !

stand every time in law without the usual legation phrascology. In writing to her to attend to any matters he could mention five or six things, but to others he usually wrote a separate letter for each thing he wanted done or else it would be neglected. Her promptness in all dealings was something marvelous. "Her novel," he said was a success financially and otherwise." When the poetess came out of the bank the sun shone full upon her, and I had a good chance to see how she looked. Her hair is a bronze color, not red, as often reported. Her mouth is pretty, complexion fair, without freekles, and her features regular. An artist would call her face handsome and attractive. Socially she is very popular, and much sought after by the brightest intellectual circles in the east.

"The other day I met Lily Curry, whom Ella Wheeler Whicox has declared the pretties literary woman in New York. She was muffled up in a scalskin cloak, and walking up Broadway. She is a tall, slight, delicate girl, with large, dark, mournful eyes, and an expression at once melancholy and intellectual. Her poems are gems of promise and her stories are as weirdly beautiful as her eyes. There is a peculiar suggestiveness about her work entirely her own. Her style is dramatic, and leaves the reader room for thought. A story of hers, entitled, "The Peacock's Portiere, called forth many complimentary comments from eastern critics. Miss Curry is a young author of great promise and perseverence, and will be published in a fortnight. I asked her about the novel: The action," she said, is dramatic and startling, and the characters mostly literary cranks. The scene is laid in New York. I predict a big sale and a very harsh criticism, with due credit for originality. What are predictions about forthooming books but the mere speculation of lottery! Let us wait and see."

Little Lotta's Age.

From the St Louis Post-Dispatch. Few of the people who see Lotta kicking her heels and playing all the tricks of a little girl on the stage would place her age at the correct figure. The little mite of a body doesn't look it, but she was born in Nassau street, New York, November 27th, 1849. Her father, John Ashworth Crabtree, was an Englishman, and kept a book store, which he abandoned to go to California, during the gold craze of '46. Lotta has been on the stagesince 1858, and she is credited with the largest pile of dollars of any woman in the profession, the greater part of which she owest to her nother's business shrewdness. There is said to be a romance ripening between herself and her good looking leading man, Mr. Frank Carlyle, although she has hitherto kept her hand, if not her fancy, free. the stage would place her age at the correct figure

The Annoying Experience of a Young Man With His Girl. It was in the smoking car of a train on the Erie read, says the New York Star, and some Erie read, says the New York Star, and some one had asked him how cold he had seen it in Montana.

"We'il, sir, I'll relate a little experience of mine in 1875," he replied as he threw his stub away. 'I was then operating a saw mill on Fat Injun creek, and courting a girl about thirteen miles away. One night in February, when the thermometer stood twenty-six degrees above zero, I rode over to see her. The family consisted of herself, father, mother, two young children and a Chinaman cook. I was warmly received, and the old folks had just gone off to bed when a blizzard came howling down Dead Man's gulch. Snow came with it, and inside of an hour the house was banked in. The thermometer kept going down and down, and before three o'clock next morning the mercury was dead out of mometer kept going down and down, and before three o'clock mext morning the mercury was dead out of sight. There was mighty little fuel for the fire, and the last stick was gone before day-light. We burned up doors, chairs, bedsteads and tables; but the cold kept growing more severe, and along toward night the father, mother and two children froze to death."

"You don't mean it," whispered one of his listeness.

"How did your girl escape?"
"I had her on my lap, with my arms around her. The old woman, when she found death approaching, begged of me to hug her, too, but I refused. There's no Mormon about me. But for my presence of mind. I should not be here

"We'l, when the last stick of fuel was exhausted. I jammed the body of the old man into the fire place. It soon blazed up and made the hottest fire we had since the cold set in. He was a tough old chap, and lasted us until about midnight. I then got up and threw the old woman on for a back log, and used the children to enunk in with."

"How did the girl take it?"

"All right until just before daylight. Then she suddenly remembered that the old man had a dollar and a half in his vest pocket when I flung him on, and this of course was lost. She reproached me for my carelessness, and one word brought on another until I plainly realized that she was no wife for me. I told her as much, and she went off to sulk in a corner. I sat toasting my shins before the handy rearized that sale was no wife for the sulk in a corner. I sat toasting my shins before the grateful fire for a quarter of an hour, and then looked around and found her dead."

"You don't say! Was she frozen:"

"Stid as a crowbar. Affairs must have been shaped by the hand of Providence, for it was ten hours longer before the blizzard broke, and I had to use her for firewood. Not having any more small children to chink in with, she burned like a log of swamp elm, and the end of my rose was frozen within five feet of the fire. She was just about gone when the blizzard broke, and I dug my way out."

"And you actually burned up that whole family to save your own infernal carcass?" exclaimed the mar with the brier root,

"Well, what could I do?"

"You look a-here!" continued the other:

"Well, what could I do?"
"You look a-here!" continued the other;

The Montana man bowed his head and would say no more, although he had not told what became of the Chinamen.

TOAD HEAVEN.

Singular Religious Sect in the Ohio Back-

From the Chicago Herald. In the extreme northwestern corner of the county of Jackson, Ohio, is a spot little known, which is called "Toad Heaven." It is a rough log thurch, which stands among the hills. Worship within it is by the rough, cranky, illiterate dwellers of the region, which is noted for its lack of any inviting features. "Toad Heaven," which name goes both for the church and the community way so christianed by a preprint pointhy. name goes both for the church and the community, was so christened by a heretic neighbor, They are all ignorant superstitious, uneducated tranks, who subsist in the most primitive fashion [and Irarely go far beyond their acres, They are of Virginia stock—"poor, white trash"—from the mountain regions. Their religious ceremonies are grotesque and highly sensational. Their "amens" and "praise the "Londs" are loud enough to shake the hills, and every month a foot-washing ceremony, called a "sacrament," is performed, as one of the church rites, corresponding to the communion in civilized churches. Every member sat in bare and dirty feet, awaiting a signal from a leader to commence a ceremony much needed by many feet, which were being rubbed together under the seats. Every man and woman were armed with a towel, worn like a sash, and a tin basin, which does secular duty at home. Brother Hurls, of Stony creek, was the leader. His reputation for bonesty was rickety. man and woman were armed with a towel, worn like a assl, and a tin basin, which does secular duty at home. Brother Hurls, of Stony creek, was the leader. His reputation for honesty was rickety, but there is no discount of his ignorant ability to enthuse. He began a disjointed sermon thus: "I hain't prepared no discourse. The Lord says to His sarvants, 'git up and deliver yo' self' an' at the same hour I'll fill yo' mouth with uttrance. I hain't no lamin' and never went to school but three days in my life, but I know I'm a chosen sarvant o' God to pint in the way of sinners. Some men who have lamin' ath' Christians, an' if they don't reform everlastin' hell will be meir sheer of the Lord's good gifts. This foot washin' of our'n ain't for the purpose of cleaning dut from our feet, for they don't need it (here Brother Hurls was guilty of lying), but it's a sacrymint handed down to His faithful followyers by Christ, who washed His discipules' feet and dried them with a lovel at the Last supper. We're not fools, we're not, for what we do is nobody's biz, an' it's all for the glory of God."

A surge of amens greeted the oratory, and Hurls, encouraged, declared that while he was not 'one o' yer polished, high-toned, stuck up preachers, with fine clothes an' standin' collars an' sinful souls, 'he was able "to preach God's hom' truths as the Lord puts 'em in my mouth.'' Hen he preached on the text "Where art thou?" He never found out, nor did his listeners know where he was, but his agony was superb. In his rambling talk he became frenzied and sweat like a harvest hand. He took off his coat and threw open his flamnel shirt, disclosing a brawn bosom hairy as an ape and which needed washing as bad as some feet which were warming up near the correspondent.

an ape and which needed washing as bad as some feet which were warming up near the correspondent.

The sermon ended, the strange proceedings commenced. In a corner was a big barrel of rain water, filled from the roof by a tin pipe let in through a window. To it each woman went and filled her basin. Then each man commenced singing a hymn, and each woman, chosing not her husband, but any brother she wished, laved his feet, one at a time, in the basin. Then she unwound the towel from her waist and wiped each foot dry. When all had finished and each pantaion leg had been rolled down there was a scratching and putting about by the men to get on their socks and boots. Then came the women's turn to have their dainty (?) feet rubbed by their brethren. The men went at it brusquely. Each woman sat and sang, clothed scantily. Each pulled up her dress discreetly until the hem was a few inches above the ankle. As each foot-washer commenced operations on tende the hem was a few inches above the ankie. As each foct-washer commenced operations on tennale feet there was a splash heard above the singing, which at times would be interrupted by quick breaths from exciteable young females. When it ended all sang a hymn and were dismissed. The general reputation of the "Toad Heaven" community is bad, but there is no discount on the muscular features of the religion.

Nelson H. Baker, district attorney, Westthester county, N. Y., office at White Plains, writes June 20, 1885: "Five years ago I, my two sons and wife were very liable to colds. We wore the heaviest clothing, wrapping ourselves up very warm; bit it was colds, coughs and catarrh all the time. Finally we commenced wearing Allcock's Porous Plasters as chest protectors. The first year we got rid of our heavy flannel as well as all coughs and colds. We each wore two plasters on the chest and pit of the stomach for three or four weeks at a time, then washed the parts with alcohol and put on tresh ones; they appeared to warm and invigorate the whole body so that we never took cold."

The Queer Make-Up of a Stranger and His From the Evansville Journal

On Main street yesterday afternoon spectators enjoyed a scene worth witnessing. A gawky tors enjoyed a scene worth witnessing. A gawky fellow and his lass, probably from the verdant regions, strutted up the street arm in arm, apparently as contented as a June bug is when he smiles serenely upon the coquettish grasshopper of the feminine persuasion. A ripple of happiness played upon their countenances that was pleasing to the eyes of a criticizing public. She showered artful glances upon him, while he reciprocated the compliment by tickling her under the law ever and anou. Their attire was of a style which is almost anou. Their attire was of a style which is almost wholly a stranger to this section of civilization. His hat in its younger days was one of the plug stripe, maybe, but as age settled upon it, holes apstripe, maybe, but as age settled upon it, holes appeared and rips were noticeable. It looked as though some one had used it for a mattress: aside from this his hair was visible through a crevice in the side. His coat resembled a flag that had seen four years' service in the late war, and had since been used as a feather renovator; his panuloon legs were probably the same length when made, but one had shrunk considerably and the other looked like it had been telescoped in a railway accident, and landed several inches above his ankle; sunset patches adorned the pantaloons, and otherwise they presented a queer spectacle. One large toe was squeezed through a hole in the left shoe; his feet spread out on the floor like ham sandwiches. The young lady wore a small straw hat on the top of her cranium, on which bloomed a patch of attificial flowers. She wore bangs, But the kind Gracious! gracious! they were the queerest specimen ever seen. Yellow in color, straight as a shingle and of different lengths, they fell over her forehead like driftwood in a slow tide. A red collar, with a green ribbon, was wrapped around her neck. The dress was a mother hubbard, with a xxx flour patch on the bustle; it struck her brogan shoe tops and flopped carelessly in the wind. He was a long link of healthy-looking bulogna sausage which peared and rips were noticeable. It looked as though

Cure for Piles.

Piles are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins and lower part of the abdomen, causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighborhas some affection of the kidneys or neighbor-ing organs. At times symptoms of indigestion are present, flatulency, uneasiness of the stom-ach, etc. A moisture, like perspiration, pro-ducing a very disagreeable itching, after get-ting warm, is a common attendant. Blind, bleeding and itching piles yield at once to the application of Dr. Bosanko's pile remedy, which acts directly upon the parts effected, absorbing the tumors, allaying the intense itching and effecting a permanent cure. Price 50 cents. Address the Dr. Bosanko Medicine Co., Pin Sold by C. O. Tyner and Goldsmith & Co. Sold by C. O. Tyner and Goldsmith & Co.

A Druggist's Story.

Mr. Isaac C. Chapman, Druggist, Newburg, N. Y., writes us: "I have for the past ten years sold several gross of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I can say of it what I cannot say of any other medi-cine. I have never heard a customer speak of it but to praise its virtues in the highest man-ner. I have recommended it in a great many cases of Whooping Cough, with the happiest cases of Whooping Cough, with the hap effects. I have used it in my own family many years; in fact, always have a bottle in the medicine closet ready for use."

Will prove to any one suffering from RHEUMA TISM, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, Neuralgia or Kid ney Troubles, that it will effect a permanent and speedy cure in every instance.

SOLD BY DRUGGISTS. Mr. Albert Howell says: A short time ago I suffered terribly with rheumatism. It was impossible to walk even with crutches. I could not put my foot to the floor. I found no relief from treatment or remedy until I tried Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure. Before I had finished taking one bottle I was able to walk comfortably with my crutches. Before I had finished the second bottle my rheumatism was entirely gone. I put my crutches aside and have never felt a twings of rheumatism since. I am well, and can say my cure is perfect and permanent. It is certainly a wonderful medicine.

ALBERT HOWELL.

CERTAIN CURE.

Atlanta, Ga., January 6, 1886.—Messrs. J. M. Hunnicutt & Co.: I have been a sufferer with kidney troubles for seventeen years, and have been treated by prominent physicians of this state and Alabama. I have used large quantities of medicines advertised to cure blood and kidney diseases, without receiving the slightest benefit. About six weeks ago I suffered such intense pain—scarcely being able to breathe at times—I concluded to try "Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure," and after using one bottle was entirely and absolutely cured, and for the first time in seventeen years I am without the slightest pain, and earnestly recommend all who suffer to give your cure a trial. Yours truly,

J. C. WARNOCK, 148 E. Fair street.

The Atlanta Postmastership.

If there is an attempt made to defeat the confirmation of Postmaster Renfroe it will ail, and it should tail. No appointment as ever made in response to a larger or ore representative petition.

Mr. Renfroe's petition was signed by the governor, by every member of the state government, by the solid supreme court, by the mayor of Atlanta and every member of the city government, by the superior and city court judges, by the city and superior court solicitor and district attorney-by the solid board of county commissioners, and by every county officer, by the attorney general, by thirty-seven out of the forty-two members of estate senate with five senators absent, by such a list of merchants and manuturers as has never been given any man bere, and was presented by and indorsed by our two United States senators.

This petition was signed deliberately and openly. It was signed in Mr. Renfroe's beof when there were known to be other canes in the field. It was signed by the people among whom Mr. Renfroe has lived the past ten years. It is under these cirmstances, unanswerable testimony to his tness and qualification, and to the popular esire on that subject.

The Blair Educational Bill.

The Blair bill which has been the theme of long speeches in the senate during the esent week, is not wholly like the Blair fill that passed the senate last year. The new bill provides that for eight fiscal years next after its passage there shall be annually appropriated from the money in the treasury the following sums, namely: The first year the sum of $7,000,000; the second year, $10, 000,000; the third year, $15,000,000; the rth year, $13,000,000; the fifth year, $11,-000,000; the sixth year, $9,000,000; the seventh year, $7,000,000, and the eighth year $5,000,000 to secure the benefits of common hool education to all the children of the school age living in the United States; se funds are to be distributed among of illiteracy. The design of the measure is not to establish an independent or national system of school, but rather to aid, for the time being, in the development and maintenance of the schools established by local gov ernment, and which must eventually be wholly maintained by the states and territories wherein they exist. It is further provided that no greater part of the money appropriated shall be paid out to any state in my one year than the sum expended out of its own resources or out of moneys raised under its authority in the preceding year for the maintenance of common schools; so that, while the apportionment of money appropri ated is to be made among the states on the basis of illiteracy, the actual yearly distribution to each, after the first year, is not to exceed the amount each state shall annually expend out of its own resources, or out of moneys raised under its authority for the support and maintenance of the common schools, exclusive of the sum expended in the erection of school buildings.

The allotment of the first year is to be made on the basis of illiteracy; but to secure the allotment of the second year on this basis a state must be prepared to show through its chief executive officer that the money of the previous year furnished by the government has been applied in accordance with the law, and that the state has expended out of its own resources during the year, an equal or larger amount. The governor of the state is required to file with the secretary of war a certified statement of such facts, together with a report as to the general condition of the common school system of his state. Separate schools for white and colored children are permitted under the terms of the act; but the spirit of the act looks to the education on equal terms of the entire scholastic population. It is estimated that with the aid afforded by the Blair bill the children of Georgia would enjoy about six or seven months schooling each year, instead of the meagre three months they now receive. But to se cure this aid the school appropriation of the state would have to be doubled. This would be a little onerous at first, but it would be a very poor piece of business to reject the terms of the Blair bill, because Georgia would, in that case, be taxed to educate illiterates in other states with no returning benchit whatever. The people of the state should not hesitate to live up to the terms of the constitution, which expressly says "there shall be a thorough system of common schools for the education of all children of the state in the elementary branches of an English education." These schools are, in the words of the constitution, to be supported by taxation, so that they shall be free to all the children of the state. The Blair bill is far less imperative in the matter of general public education than the provision in the constitution that the people of Georgia almost unanimously adopted.

The Spring Trade.

"I am confident," says a Boston merchant, "that business is gradually picking up." Another Boston business man thinks the indications are fayorable for a large trade this spring. This is the prevailing opinion in New England, where wages have recently been generally advanced, where the mills are again busy.

In the northwest business is not active because the roads are impassable and the price of wheat is remarkably low. There is much interest taken in that quarter of the country in the next crops. In some districts the farmers are at work in the fields preparing the soil for seeding, and if winter slips away soon, as is anticipated, there will be large preparations for spring wheat. The south, like the west, is also looking forward to the crop season. In spite of low prices, the planters are fully as forehanded s they have been at any time since the war, and nothing but favorable weather is needed to ensure large crops. The number of failures is rapidly lessening in the south and in a short time everybody in the country will be in the fields, and everybody in own will be waiting to see what the outturn of the crops promises to be. Railroad construction will be revived throughout the south this year, and in nearly every southern state new lines will be built. The south bids fair to furnish one-balf of the construction of the country, and some of the papers estimate that ten thousand miles will be built this year in the country. The locomotive works are full of orders, and the price of steel rails is very well maintained. Our exports are falling off, however, and unless there is a change in our favor very soon, more gold will have to be sent to Enrope. In the seven months ending with January we shipped but $62,400,000 worth of breadstuffs, a falling off of $35,000,000; in the three months ending with January there was a decrease of over $8,000,000 in the value of beef and pork products exported; in the nine months ending with January there was a decrease of $4,000,000 in the value of dairy products exported; and in the single month of January the exportation of cotton was less by $5,000,000 than in January 1885, while in breadstuffs the falling off in the same month was $8,470,000. This is the only serious drawback in the general trade situation; but a month's time, or the prospect of war in the Balkans, or a fall in prices on this side of the water, or an unlooked for deficiency in the European markets, may change the face of our foreign trade, and then the entire situation would be promising, and a feeling of confidence would spread over the country.

A Comic Opera House. As a ready letter-writer, General Tecum seh takes the cake and just as many baskets of confectionery as he can afford to carry off. He is not a professional politician, but it is clear from his correspondence that if he had exercised his talents in that direction he would today be far ahead of hisBrer John as republican statesman of the modern school. All he needs today is about two weeks' earnest rehearsal. For a bluff old campaigner he has a great knack of knowing on which side his fatty-bread is greased.

The general is very mad with the newspapers for printing some of his old letters and commenting on them, and he predicts that this busy and newsy attitude of journalism will result before long in a bloody war in which the entire country will take sides on a proposition to lynch all newspaper 'editors and writers. This is a tribute to the editors themselves, and the bare statement of General Sherman's opinion shows that he has more respect for them than he had awhile ago. It is well known that he has heretofore regarded newspaper men as non-combatants, and the fact that he has changed his opinion is worth noting.

He has evidently concluded that the ediorial guild is exceedingly ferocious, so much so that a war of extermination would be attended with considerable bloodshed. As we understand it, this war is not to be participated in by all the population, but is be a contest between the editors who write just enough, and the blustering generals, and colonels, and majors, who write a great deal too much for their own peace o mind, or for the comfort of the public. Such a contest could have but one conclusion. The blustering generals, colonels and majors would be driven to the wall. They would be forced to make an unconditional surrender. Their pens would be taken away from them and they would be released only on condition that they wrote no more

On what ground can General Sherman claim that the newspapers of the country are responsible for his remarkable letters? Another series of these extraordinary documents has appeared since he predicted war, and they show beyond question that the bluff general was just bluff enough to do a little toadying on his own account. He wrote to Halleck and told him that his place could not be supplied in the west, and then when Grant appeared on the scene he was an ardent Grant man, and so on through the list. Whatever man was above him, Sherman believed that man to be the anointed, and the result is a very queer jumble. Indeed, by means of his able pen, General Sherman, with all his ability, has given himself a place by the side of the most renowned heroes af comic opera.

A Lively Banquet.

Colonel Bennett Burleigh, the ex-confederate officer who recently stood for parliament in Glasgow, Scotland, as the candidate of the iberal party, was the hero of a rather queer adventure the other night.

It seems that Colonel Burleigh's friends decided to entertain him at a banquet and present him with an elegant clock, a pair of costly statuettes, and a purse containing $1,500. This was all very pleasant, but one Tagg, who had fought Burleigh during the campaign, determined to spoil the fun. Burleigh had sued Tagg for slander, and the latter had responded by bringing a similar action. It struck Tagg that it would be a capital idea to send the sheriff to the banquet with an attachment to be levied on the oresents. Unfortunately he could not keep his scheme to himself, but unfolded it to a few friends, who at once gave it away.

The banquet was at its height when the sheriff walked in. Flourishing a tormidable looking document, the officer went up to the chairman and demanded the surrender of the articles presented to Burleigh. There was a roar of laughter all around the table, and the chairman informed the sheriff that the gifts had been quietly delivered to Burleigh at his lodgings before the banquet. The discomfiture of the officer was rendered more complete by Burleigh, who rose from his chair, waved his purse over his head, and said: "I've got a good grip, and I am going to keep the things." A burst of cheers followed the speech, and the sheriff was bounced out of the room to the music of "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Tagg's blunder has made him the laughing stock of the town, and the ex-confederate is receiving congratulations on all sides.

The Sheriffs of Texas. The sheriffs of Texas held their seventh

One of the best things done by the convention was the organization of a relief association for the purpose of assisting the families of officers who may be killed in the discharge of their duty, or who may die in destitute circumstances. This action of the Texas sheriffs cannot be too highly commended.

The character, intelligence and ability of the men who are charged with the duty of preserving the peace and executing the laws of the lone star state speak well for the progress of that region. When a state has good sheriffs the lawlessness of the frontier is compelled to retire before the advancing wave of law and order.

Boys who think it a fine thing to steal a ride in a freight car will do well to consider the experience of a tramp named William Rutherford, who recently rode in a car laden with corn from Dayton, Ohio, to New York. Rutherford went to sleep after entering the car, and when he woke up the door was locked. He was five days making the trip. He subsisted by chewing corn until the last day, when his mouth and gums became so swollen from thirst that he could not swallow. He suffered intensely from the cold; and had resigned himself to death when the car reached New York and the door was opened.

DURING the late heavy snow a family tradng boat on the Mississippi was tied up at a lonely place on the Arkansas side for the night. The boat was occupied by the owner, a man named Young, and his wife. Not dreaming of danger, they retired to their cabin after supper and went to sleep. About midnight they were rudely awakenened by two ruffians who broke into the cabin. The intruders ordered the Youngs to leave the boat. The frightened couple begged that they might be allowed to dress, but this was refused, and they went ashore barefooted in their thin night clothes. It was dark and stormy and every pathway was obliterated by the snow. The two wandered aimlessly about suffering intense agony A day or two later their frozen bodies were found. The two men who took possession of the boat and robbed it have been captured, and are in jail at Osceola.

Saturday last at daybreak people living on both banks of the Tombigbee river for forty miles in Choctawy, Marengo and Sunter counties, Alabama, were startled by a rumbling noise as of a distant discharge of cannon, which was followed immediately by a sharp trembling of the earth, which continued for a minute or more, and scared many persons so they hurrically fied from their houses. At Moscow, fifteen miles below Demopolis, the ground seemed to heave up half a foot and then subside, and trees awayed from side to side. At Beckley's landing the shock was heavily felt. All the plastering in Mrs. Crane's house was shaken down. She thought the chimneys had fallen, and ran out in her night clothes. At Rembert's landing crockery was thrown from the shelves, and chairs and tables overset. At Palachia, in Choctaw, people were badly frightened by the noise and the swaying of trees, accompanied by falling of dead limbs. Cattle were tripped from their feet. He was feeling well when he arose to address the crowded gathering, and after making a pleasant allusion to his failure to fulfill an engagement at the church earlier in the winter he entered into his subject with great warmth. His earnest exertions, added to the lack of sufficient ventilation, soon told upon the speaker, while he mopped large beads of perspiration from his forehead. He had been speaking about forty minutes when he began to make an eloquent reference to the poisonous effects of rum. In fiery sentences he was filustrating the crushing power of alcohol by describing in a dramatic manner the movements of an imaginary serpent around his arm, when his head suddenly dropped upon his chest and his arms were thrown wildly in the air. During the session the question of the final dissolution of the confederacy was canvassed land his prospects of getting out of the country were freely discussed. It was agreed that in case the worst came an effort should be made to reach the sea coast and there secure a vessel to take Mr. Bavis and his cablnet to some foreign port. The question of the ready means to pay for this service was also considered, and each cabinet officer began to take an account of stock to see how much gold or silver he could command. Mr. Breckenridge had something like $500 in gold, Mr. Reagan had something like the same amount, and every one had a greater or smaller amount. Mr. Davis looked on in silence at their investigations and was the last to speak. When the question was asked what his condition was he said:

"Gentlemen, I have not a penny put confederate money and only the amount of my last month's salary, which I drew the day before General Lee's lines were broken."

CONSTITUTIONALS.

General Gossip and Editorial Short Stope Caught on the Run.

The Fitz John Porter discussion in the house has brought before the public the qualities of some of the fighters on both sides of the great struggle.

An old federal soldier who now holds a seat in congress said to me a day or two ago:

"The most promising military career in our army was blighted when Porter fell under a cloud. There no doubt of the fact that he had a contempt for Pope as a man and as a commander. He chafed under the consciousness that he was under the command of an incompetent and spiteful officer. I don't think this influenced his action in the historic case. If there was a man in either army who loved to fight t was Porter, but he was no fool, and the conduct for which he was court martialled was the exercise of his military sense. He had an appreciation of the situation of which Pope was abso capable and he had no desire to sacrifice the fifth army corps in a useless dash upon Jackson with Longstreet ready to swoop down and insure the capture of his entire command.

Said the same veteran: "The best corps commandr,I'believe,in either army, was Joe Hooker.'I never saw a man who could handle a corps so well and get so much fighting out of it. But that was the mit of Hooker's capacity as a general. Several times he had command of an army and each time he adopted the tactics which made him a matchess corps commander. He did not have a power of generalization sufficient to overcome his natural pugnacity. If one part of his line was getting the verst of a fight he could not leave it, even to see great advantage elsewhere."

"The two men," continued the old soldier, "who have received less credit for their work in conque ing the confederacy, compared to the value of their services, are Sherman and Meade. Sherman's 'march to the sea' was undertaken against the protest of Grant and other high military authoriti Stanton hated Sherman because Sherman would not truckle to him.

"As to Meade, the injustice is still more striking. Had Lee won the battle of Gettysburg the confederacy would have been invincible. Lee has been severely censured by military critics for pushing into this fight. It was a Napoleonic move-ment worthy of the great commander who made it. Lee realized that the confederacy with its limited resources must triumph soon if it triumpned at all. He failed, but failed through no fault of his own. Meade laid plans for his battle superbly, and calculated the result from the start. Hancock was his right arm, but the man who directed the ruinous work of the artillery was

"Meade died almost unknown, and Hunt is now only a retired colonel. Congress passed a bill re-tiring him as a major general, and Chester Arthur etoed it for flimsy technicalities. Sherman has iled under his subordination to the unanimous orthern praise of Grant, and is going to his grave bitter and cynical old man."

"Who," I asked, "was the best commander in the ontederate army?"

"Jackson was the unapproached genius of the war," was the quick response. "There was a poise and a steadfastness about Lee which reminds me of Washington, but even more of Wellington. ongstreet was a magnificent general, f the war had continued six months longer, Gordon yould have been the most conspicuous man in the onfederate army. SAM SMALL.

He Tells the Story of His Conversion-From a Long Debauch to the Pulpit. From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

"Tell me how you were converted." 'Well, it was in this way: The 13th of last Sen tember (Sunday) I took my wife and children and went from Atlanta, my home, up to Cartersville, fifty miles away, to hear Sam Jones preach in a big camp-meeting. It was a kind of a Sunday execu sion. Any change of life up to that time? No: there had been no change of life up to that time— but for the worse. I heard Sam Jones preach, and I was convicted of my sins. I was awakened.
This was on Sunday. I went home and got drunk again, and I staid drunk until Tuesday afternoon. Then I went into my library at about four o'clock, and I prayed until I felt that I saw my way clear. I had been thinking about my condition and I felt that the time had ed to the Lord. Then 'I went out and had three thousand circulars printed announcing that I would preach that evening at the corner of Marictia and I reachtree streets. The first job printer I went to thought I was crazy. You see, I had been on a drunk, and my friends had often thought that I WOULD GO CRAZY from drink, and so this man thought the same, and wouldn't print my bills. So I went to another place and I got them printed at last. I had them distributed, and at the place mentioned a great crowd assembled when it came time for me to speak. I told them what had happened, what I was going to do, and told them I meant business. They could stand off and see me do it."

"Then as soon as Jones heard about what had happened he telegraphed me to come up to Cartersville and speak for him. Well, I preached the next two nights in local churches, and Saturday I went up and preached for Jones. From that day to this I have lost about a dozen days, speaking some days from one to four times. Yesterday," and here was another complete overturing of the erroneous Vesterday," and here was another complete overturning of the erroneous theory of his being converted some time ago, studying with hishop Beckwith, etc., "yesterday I was five months old in the gospel."

'How are you satisfied with your work?"
"Thoroughly, thoroughly. My best friends said I ought to have been in this work long ago. My mother prayed and prayed for it till the day of her death. I fought it as long as I could. My work has been uniformly pleasant, and I feel that it has been blessed with success."
"Now, how many have you converted."
"Well, you mean the twoof us, since I have been working with Jones? It's hard to tell; it can't be told, but I can give you estimates of our work together. In St. Joseph, Mo., 2,20; in Birmingham, Ala. 1.800, in St. Louis, well, we can't tell, but by the best calculation by those in the churches, about 1.600; in Cincinnati, there's absolutely no telling. The names of probably 2,000 people in Cincinnati were handed in, but there were many, many people who had been formerly connected with, churches who did not care to have their names given. It is thought that the lives of from 20,000 to 21,000 people were affected by the meetings."

We sincerely hope that the Imission of Messrs. Small and Jones will be crowned with Messrs. Small and Jones will be crowned with Messrs. Chicago is not as wicked a city as it is represented to be, but it is wicked enough, God knows, and a general awakening of a better moral sentiment among the people is needed here, if it is needed anywhere on earth. When the sense of moral righteousness in any community becomes so dulled that a hall full of its men—mind you, its men—will witness and enjoy such a brutal exhibition as that which occurred at Central Music hall night before last, it is high time hat something was at least peing attempted.

Mr. Pierce was one of the oldest and best known railroad men in the United States, and it hardly seems possible thas any question could arise as to his identity. New York, February 19.—Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett are both playing here in heroic works. These two actors have formed rather a strong association and its details illustrate the difference between the two men, their hebits, multitors, There here habits, ambitions and conditions. There has been a good deal of mystery surrounding their fairs and purposes for another year. It has een announced that Mr. Booth would play in Ir. Barrett's management after the present season with Mr. Field. The fact has been variously commented upon, for it was rather a remarkable proceeding for one actor playing almost identical roles to engage to take the management of another actor in the same class of plays. The facts of their union are these: Mr. Booth is an indolent and uneven tragedian, and under no circumstances can be are these: Mr. Booth is an indolent and uneven tragedian, and under no circumstances can he be induced to attend to the labors of rehearsals. He acts because of his family history more than from any inclination. He has plenty of money to live at his ease and he is inclined to do it. He has passed the knob of his endeavor and will hereafter act only as a pastime. His refusal to attend rehearsals and drill his company has always left him with crude and in-adequate support, and his impersonations of famous characters have suffered in conse-

Mr. Booth replied that he world not act forty weeks for $500,000; that compartive ease and comfort was as much a object to him as money. Heretogree Mr. Booth has been in the habit of acting about twenty-six weeks, but after a good many negotiations Mr. Booth has made a contract with Mr. Barrett to play thirty weeks next year under his management, for which next year under his management, for which he is likely to receive more than $100,000, free of all incumbrances. He will personally superintend the rehearsals, playing the part that Mr. Booth is to enact with the company, so that when it is ready to go to actual work all Mr. Booth will have to do is to come to the theatre and play with a symmetrical company, well schooled by a painstaking and intelligent actor. How yell this scheme is to work time alone can ell. So far this season Booth has practically walked through his parts, except on one or two occasions, when he seemed to catch a new upfirit and put some enthusiasm into his work. BUNDLING "DISCUSSED.

THE STRANGE OLD DUTCH CUSTOM OF PENNSYLVANIA.

ow Sleepy Lovers May Recline Upon Each Other's Shoulders Without Suspicion, and Thus Appear Together at the Breakfast Table-Other Quaint Customs.

LEWISTON, Pa., February 19.-[Special.]-A great region hereabouts in central Pennsylvania is the source of the most exaggerated and hurtful accounts because many of the young people maintain the ancient custom of ling; or, rather because the practice is misunderstood by those who do not know anything about it, and imagine it to be something extremely vicious. Several elergymen, anxious to relieve their people of a stigma, have invited and facilitated an investigation of the facts, and the result is given herewith. The hotel keepers and railroad men say that there is seldom a day on which some stranger, usually a commercial traveller, does not ask them in a mysterious whisper how or where or with whom they can bundle, as if addresses of the Dutch girls who perpetuate this practice were sent to the hotels or depots or printed in directories for the sake of the public convenience. Bundling in one encyclopedia is described as a vicious custom that formerly attained in Edinburgh, but among the Pennsylvania Duten it is a vastly different thing, has been hearded down from one generation to snother. Duten is a vastly different thing, has been handed down from one generation to another in this region, and is thought by the people who practice it to be an old custom in the fatherland. But it is a curious practice, and fatherland. But it is a curious practice, and one quite startling to a person who finds himself suddenly made acquainted with it. The art of bundling consists simply and solely of the girl reclining on a lounge with her companion beside her. All there is to know or to be told concerning it can be quickly told. Only engaged couples are supposed to indulge in this singular practice, and they are supposed to resort to it when conversation fails, the hour has become late and a desire for sleep impels both to adjourn to the couch. It is said by the clergy here who wish to see it die out, that it must have had its origin in some sparsely settled country infested gin in some sparsely settled country infested with robbers, or wild beasts, through which it was not safe for the beaux to pass alone at the conclusion of evening visits to their sweethearts. However that may be, it is the theory that when two young farmer folks are engaged to marry, the young man may, if he chooses, re-main all night in the presence of his inamorata and the fire—the only one in the house in most cases—to arise early and either seek his home or breakfast with the family. But the practice has grown and altered so at this time not only the Dutch, but many Americans and Protestants as well as Dunkards, pursue the custom, not universally, but so very generally that one needs only a short acquaintance in almost any farm house in the country, away from the Pennsylvania railroad, to be able to command the experience. But it appears that it is no longer the custom to bundle instead of parting. The fashion has been amended so that the bundling comes when conversation flags, and is incomes when conversation flags, and is in-dulged in until one or the other falls asleep, when the wakeful one arouses the other, when

when the wakeful one arouses the other, when the beau takes his leave and his "team" and is The present agitation of the subject comes of a breach of promise case, in which one side seeks to damage the reputation of the plaintiff' because she bundled, while on her behalf it is held that the fact should involve no reflection on her character. Of course where gossip about such a practice is spread far and wide, about such a practice is spread are and was, the news is accompanied by assurance that the most frightful immorality attains. The phrase "of course" is used because it is so and because it is only natural that it should be so, yet the writer has been mable to obtain any proof writer has been unable to obtain any proof that great evil results from the custom. The records of this and neighboring counties do not prove it, the bearing of the girls who fol-low the custom, nor their reputation nor the manner in which the young men behave toward them do not prove it. Fine, plump, rosy-cheeked girls they are, as a rule, as one sees them here in the farm and market wagons, but far from forward or bold in their gaze or their bearing. With them the strange practice of bundling seems to entall no more of a loss of discretion or modesty than does the turning down of lamps in our own rural parlors elsewhere in the country with the girls who follow that odd fashion. There are exceptions, the young men admit, but as a rule the girls permit no misunder-standing of the fact that they follow the usage in burdling solely because it is the usage and because their mothers did it before them, but rents seem to see no harm in it, and do not intrude upon the couples or, it is said, appear very much astonished if sleep overtakes the bundlers and the very man appear very man the very man appear very man they grant no other liberties with it. The the bundlers and the young man appears at breakfast though that is a rare occurrence and r is said even now to indicate a depth of attachment warranting if not indicating an en-gagement for marriage. The stranger is thus brought face to face with the power of custom. For a girl in one of the other states or even in a Pennsylvania city or village to be known to have spent a night with her suitor in her par-lor or anywhere else would serve as an Indict-ment against her character which no amount ment against her character which no amount of explanation could quash, but in this prosperous, peaceful countryside the Pennsylvania Dutch girl goes on her way sacreligiously offending the proprieties of far less moral communities, but innocent of the offense; pure in heart and free from suspicion among her people. Such is the positive assertion of the clergy, whose position, as assumed in a recent conference, is as follows: They disapprove of bundling, and seek to put an end. o it, just as ministers elsewhere may move against dancing; they are now fulminating a joint manifesto against it, and expect to ing a joint manifesto against it, and expect to abolish it within a few years; but they earnest-ly desire that their action shall not be miscon-

grant $20. The old rate was $100, $75 and $45. CHICAGO, February 19.—Prominent railroad officials in commenting on the situation this morning, said that the action of the Pacific roads in the sale of unlimited tickets at reduced rates meant that the old tariff would probably never again be imposed, as the present rate allowed them nearly three cents, which was an equitable return for so long a haul.

CHICAGO, February 19.—The overland railway war growing out of the collapse of the trans-continental association, was instituted today in a continental association, was instituted today in a thoroughly aggressive way, both as to passenger and freight traffic. All the lines running west and southwest from this city having California connections were booking passengers today to San Francisco at $70 for first class unlimited, $60 for first class limited, and $82 for second class and emigrant. In the matter of contracting for freight, no rates are quoted, but agents have been given carte blanche to secure business at any figure, and it is known that very large reductions are being made.

St. PAUL, MINN., February 19.—The officials of the Northern Pacific railway here are awaiting telegraphic instructions from New York, concerning the rates to the Pacific coast. They say they expect any moment to receive orders to cut both freight and passenger rates, and that the latter from here to Fortland will go down to $25.

New Steamers Ordered. NEW YORK, February 19 .- Upon receipt of the official notice that after thirty days from February 18th, the "subsidy" paid nental roads would cease, the Pacific Mail Steam ship cempany's executive committee immediate y instructed their president to establish a weekly line from New York to San Francisco, and to purchase one new steamer and take measures for building

REVISING RATES.

A Meeting of Bate Clerks Being Held at the Office of Commissioner Slaughter. A meeting of rate clerks is being held at the office of Commissioner Mercer Slaughter. Yesterday afternoon the representatives of the various lines met at the office of the commissioner. Owing to the absence of one or two of the members little pregress was made. Today, however, the committee will buckle down to hard and effective work. The object of the meeting is to revise all passenger rates from points within the territory covered by the southern passenger committee, to points without the territory.

What is known in railroad circles as the Montgomery rate sheet, was taken up yesterday for consideration, and the committee will pay its attention to that sheet until a satisfactory conclusion is reached.

The members of the committee are Charles Kelley, of the Louisville and Nashville system: Mr. Benscoter, of the queen and Crescent railway; Fleuillon Drake, of the Georgia Pacific railway; A. Maddison, of the Associated lines: Mr. McFarland, of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad; Mr. Roberts, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia system.

The committee will be in session several days. A meeting of rate clerks is being held at the

The committee will be in session several days. Employes' Relief Fund.

The new plan of relief for the employes of the Pennsylvania railroad, in case of sickness, accident or death, has been in force, and employes cheen or death, has been in force, and employes have six months in which to apply for membership. As understood from published accounts, the plan is not to be enforced on present employes, but will be on all entering the service hereafter. It proposes to pay $500 in case of death from sickness and $2,500 on death from accident while in service of the comany, and $5, per week sick benefit at an annual cost per member of $30, to be paid in monthly installments.

In the case of the Texas Mexican railway ompany vs. Wills the Texas court of appeals held company vs. Whis the Texas court of appeals held that a regulation by a railway company that a passenger should surrender at the point of destination the coupon ticket or check for any excess of baggage before he could demand his baggage was reasonable, and was not a limitation of the liabilities of common carriers within the meaning of the statutes prohibiting such limitation.

the Advertiser has published an abstract, has unusual interest, from the circumstance that the relations between the company and the government are the subject of pending legislation. In the senate the Hoar funding bill has been reported from the judiciary committee, and will, no doubt, come up in its regular order in the course of the next fortnight; while in the other branch several bills have been referred to the committee on Pacific roilways. It may be said also, without disparagement of preceding boards of government directors, that the present report is of much greater value than any hitherto submitted, for the reason that it treats what newspaper neople would call a timely topic in a very fresh, interesting and suggistive way.

With the lapse of time and the approaching maturity of the government loan to the pioneer Pacific roads, the necessity of reaching some satisfactory basis between the government and the roads as debtor and credition, grows more and more pressing. The subject has been urged upon the attention of congress at every session since the passage of the Thurman act, the futility of which was so apparent that every officer of the government connected with its enforcement recommended some modification of it within six months after it became a law, but nothing has ever been done. The revenues of the company are diverted to a sinking fund, paying less than 3 per cent, while the interest on the original debt is climbing at the rate of 6 per cent, and by the terms of the charter is due only at the maturity of the loan. This is a state of things which would not be permitted to endure for a day between individual debtors and creditors. Yet congress putters over the matter session after session: the interior and treasury departments regularly call attention to the deplorable state of things and the necessity for legislation to mend it, and nothing whatever is done. Undeniably the security of the government is suffering impairment at the same time that the interests of innocent stockholders are sacr iness man endeavoring to effect a settlement with a creditor.

Concerning the policy of devoting surplus earnings to the building of branch lines, which has been sometimes criticized as an improper diversion of revenues, the government directors are ordspoken and emphatic. In their indorsement of it they go so far as to say: "Without them, (the branch lines) the main line would today be a bankrupt property." Upon every consideration affecting the final security of the government for its loan as well as the present interests of the company, the view of President Adams concerning the wisdom of the branch line policy is sustained by the government directors. It is understood that the report is the work of General E. P. Alexander, of Georgia, chalrman of the board, who is himself a practical railroad man, having had large experience in the management of railroads in the south and west, and well known as a valued contributor to the literature of the subject.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution. Special to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, February 19—On 'change today everything was very flat, nothing attracting more than the smallost possible amount of interest. The general tone was weaker, the foundation for this feeling being the proveding sport storm which is superal tone was weaker, the foundation for this feeling being the prevailing snow storm, which is supposed to be favorable to winter wheat. Two points were lost at the opening. May wheat starting at $4%, and during the first hour it failed to see SP4c. and during the first hour it failed to see higher than $42. There was a temporary feeling of weakness on the strength of a statement from New York that $750,000 in gold had been taken for export today. But very little was done in the last half of the morning session, May closing at $4.5-16. The after non-session closed a shade higher. A rather easier ione prevailed in corn, and prices were a little lower. The bulls appear to have fully graphed to the pulled out for a time.

Hog product is falling back again into its old ruts. Hog product is failing back again into its old rus. May pork ruled very slightly lower with only a small trade in it. The tone was so heavy that even an advance of for in prices for live hogs at the yards failed to tone up the pit. Shipments from the yards were also on an unusually free scale.

The English Grain Trade.

LIVERPOOL, February 19.—The leading grain eircular says wheat continues steady but business is dull and dragging with prices nominally unchanged. Calting ports remain almost bare of cargoes and business for this position is, therefore, unimportant. There is good inquiry for shipments for the united kingdom and the continent. Business in California and Oregon wheat is fairly active. Ever since Tuesday the demand for wheat has been slow and corn has been firm. At today's market there was an average attendance. Wheat was in quiet request and prices were unchanged. The English Grain Trade. was in quiet request and prices were unchanged Trade in corn was limited; flour was more active PROVISIONS, GRAIN, ETC,

New Line of Hacks.—It is rumored that a company will soon be formed to start a line of first-class street hacks in this city.

AT HIS POST.—Dr. Murray, night manager of the Western Union Telegraph office, who has been quite sick, is able to be at his post of Nor to Web.—Colonel Joe Farrell writes a riend from Gainesville, Ga., that he has no dea of marrying, and that he will remain ingle for some time yet.

HE GETS BETTER.—Conductor Francis, of the Richmond and Danville, who was so bad-ly hurt by roughs near Flowery Branch, a few days ago, is improving gradually.

ARRESTING AN ESCAPED CONVICT .- Bill Henderson, the negro man who escaped from the county chain gang last Tuesday, was arrested yesterday morning by Patrolman Mercer. Henderson escaped from the gang and then made no effort toleave the city. He had only twenty-seven days to serve when he got away.

THE CAPITOL COMMISSIONERS.—The board of capitol commissioners held a short meeting yesterday morning at the executive department, at which all of the members were present, with the exception of Commissioner Alex-Mr. Edbrooke the architect, was pres ent, and during the time that the board was in session the meeting wat of an informal character. Nothing of interest transpired.

FOR THEIR CHURCH .- The ladies of the For THEIR CHURCH.—The ladies of the German Lutheran church will have a hop at intennial hall next Monday night for the meft of the church. Those having the entrainment in charge promise all who attend pleasant evening. The committee on invitations is composed of:

Miss Tora Jentzen, Miss Tenle Stieglitz, Miss liatile Wedemeyer, Miss Dora Branning, Miss Liatie Ehlers, Mrs. J. H. Jentzen, Mrs. F. Wedemeyer.

ROBEING A HEN ROOST.—Night before last a chicken thief entered Mr. W. F. Parkhurst's premises and stole four chickens from the cop. The thief was driven out of the yard by Mr. Parkhurst's dog, and as he left the yard he ran into Captain Moon and Patrolman Hamilton. When the thief saw the officers he wheeled about and ran. The officers followed, but the thief made good his escape. This makes the second time this week that thieves have robbed Mr. Parkhurst's hen house.

In Called Session.—The board of aldermen met in called session yesterday morning. The call was issued by Mayor Hillyer, who explained that he had convened the body so that rome definite action might be taken relative to grade of Houston street. In a few days
1/4 ractors will begin laying gas and water a pes on Houston street, and the city engineer (cd that the work be done in accordance tha permanent grade. The change in the ade will not be any material departure from e present grade. The board passed a resoluon authorizing and directing the city enginr to give the proper grade to the street.

SCIT OVER LAND .- Mr. J. C. Jenkins has led in the clerk's office of the supreme court led in the clerk's office of the supreme court declaration for the recovery of certain land, I which Jeff Waits now resides. The petitioners are Andrew J. Waits, Alexander Waits, Drucilla Parish, Newton Waits, Nancy R. Dacy Waits, and Susan R. Morgan, who claim that Jeff Waits is in possession of a certain tract of land in this county, in Oak Grove district, containing two hundred and two and one half acres more or less, it being the land formerly owned by the grandmother of the petitioners and by her willed to the children of Absalom Waits; another lot of land upon which Jeff Waits now resides, and upon which he has resided for a number of years past, and to which land the petitioners claim title. Jeff Waits has received the profits since the first day of January, 1867, of the yearly value of three hundred dolars.

THE INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL .- A novel plan to tion's now exciting great interest in the y. All superintendents of Sunday-schools interesting the scholars by relating to them are interesting the scholars by relating to them the noble work the ladies are carrying on. It wenty-six little girls picked from the streets are being taught to read, sew, cook, and so educated that they carry to the desolate and untidy homes they leave each morning, an atmosphere that influences for good all the members of the family, besides being so benefitted themselves. Street beggars will leave the streets and the girls will become ambitions. the streets and the girls will become ambitious to enter the industrial school. Now, in order that it shall prosper and succeed, each child in the Sunday-schools is asked to bring on Sunday, the 28th instant, to his school, and give to the superintendent thereof, one pound of something, be it coffee, sugar, soap, flour, rice or something else, and by this means an abundance of what is needed will be means an abundance of what is needed will be given without being felt. And it is to be hoped it will not be confined to the children, though it is to be established as a children's day for all time. Let every parent enthuse his child and the success of a noble charity will be in-

THE ARMSTRONG CASE.

His Counsel File an Answer With Bishop J. W. Beckwith.

Late yesterday afternoon Senator J. S. Da vidson of Augusta, who is associated with Mr. Hoke Smith as counsel for Rev. J. G. Armstrong, called at the residence of Bishop J. W. Beckwith and filed with him Dr. Armstrong's answer to the notice served upon him by the bishop resiting the finding of the ecclesiastical fifteen days in which to consider and act upon them.

The answer, it is stated on good authority, contains an appeal for a new trial upon a number of strong grounds. It also stated that the communication contains briefs of the arguments made by the defense at the trial, and also a record of the finding of the court, together with certain newly discovered evidence that is considered of much value, and a strong appeal from the friends and admirers of Dr. Armstrong, who ask that in the event a new trial is refused that the sentence imposed will be tempered with as much leniency as possible. Bishop Beckwith and the attorneys if the case are very reticent and decline to divulgo the secrets contained in the big envelope. Last night the bishop broke the seal of the envelope, and passed the greater portion of the evening examining its contents. Before acting in the premises he will have a conference with W. G. Charleton, of Savannah, the church advocate. Mr. Charleton will be called to Atlanta about the end of the coming week of give his opinions upon the legal points in the case. SOUTH VIEW CEMETERY.

The Colored People Buying a New Cemetery.

Six hundred dollars have been paid down as bonus on a tract of land of twenty-five acres or a new cemetery by the colored people of this city.

The land is situated four miles from the city

The land is situated four miles from the city on the McDonough road, and is beautifully suited for a cemetery. The colored people of the city have raised nearly enough money to pay for the land, the cost of which is three thousand five hundred dollars. They say they will make it the most beautiful colored cemetery in the south within the next ten years. Several bodies will be disinterred from the old cemetery and carried to the new. City Engineer Clayton was yested ay called upon and asked to make a bid surveying the grounds and laying it off.

A white man named Williams was almost killed by an unknown negro on Marietta street last night. The darkey was walking along the street and met Williams, who struck him with his elbow as they passed. The darkey made some insulting remark, and Williams started toward him. When the two men were in a few feet of each other, the darkey struck the white man a terrible blow over the head with a heavy stick. The lick was a terrible one, and dropped the man. The darkey wheeled about and made his escape. Williams's head was badly cut by the lick.

HE STRUCK A CHILD. W. H. Blanchard, a family grocer at 260

Hilliard Bowles was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Abbott, because of disorderly conduct on Decatur street. After the patrolman reached police headquarters with his prisoner, and he had been locked up in order to secure his engerance in police court this matering it. his appearance in police court this mofning, it was ascertained that a warrant charging him with assault with intent to murder was in a pigeon hole at headquarters. The warrant was drawn out, the dust was blown off and the cob webs removed, and Bowles will be held to an webs removed, and sowies will be held to answer it. Several months ago Bowles assaulted a negro man on Marietta street and gave him a pounding with a stick which came near resulting in death. The warrant was then sworn out but Bowles managed to keep clear of the officers until yesterday.

STEALING FROM A BUTCHER. Hilliard Reid, charged with larceny from the house, was given a sleeping cot in the city pris-on last night by Detectives Bedford and Steerman. Reid has been working for Sparks & Primrose for some time past. Recently these butchers have been missing fish, sausage and game, and a few days ago reported the case at police headquarters. Detectives Bedford and Steerman were instructed to investigate it. Last night they laid a trap and Reid walked into it. When the detectives came upon him into it. Rev. Sam Jones was in the city yesterday looking well. The great evangelist bids fair to have a bright red color in his face after awhile. He was asked about his movements and said. "I will leave for Milledgeville tonight, and

"What sort of a reception do you expect?"
"We will meet a cordial reception I am sure.
I received a communication yesterday from the south side pastors of Chicago. Five denominations were represented in the communication. The pastors said they would go heartily into the work and would expect great recents."

"Tell me something of the Cincinnati meet

"The Cincinnati meeting was one of the most remarkable that I ever witnessed. I have seen seven thousand men stand in an instant, to the proposition 'All of you who will forsake your evil ways and seek a better iife, stand up.' I think if we could have found seating room for 40,000 people within the range of my voice we could have had that number as easily as we had ten thousand. The press, the preachers and the Cincinnati people did all they could to help us in our work, and God Himself did great things for us."

"What about results?"

"There can be no estimate as to the results. The revival spirit has gotten into all the churches, and services are in progress nightly in all the Protestant churches. For a radius of a hundred miles around Cincinnati the work is spreading and the fires are catching. I hope in the future to know that not less than fifty thousand souls were brought to Christ, directly and indirectly, within the radius of that meeting."

"How is Mr. Small getting on?"

"How is Mr. Small getting on?"
"He is growing rapidly. In Cincinnati he made thousands of friends, and preached some of the most effective sermons I ever listened to. I believe him to be a consecrated man."

girls, on Marietta street.

Last evening a Constitution reporter called on Mrs. H. Witter, state superintendent of the W. C. T. U., at her home on Simpson street, and asked the cause of the withdrawal of the union from the home.

"Well, sir," said Mrs. Witter, "it was done for the good of the home, I hope."

"How can it benefit the home?"

"A number of people here have signified a willingness to give assistance to the home, but they don't want anything to do with the Women's Christian Temperance Union. I don't know," laughingly said the lady, "but I guess it is the temperance they object to. After fally considering the matter, we decided it best to withdraw, but the same time every member considering the matter, we decided it best to withdraw, but the same time every member will work just as hard as heretofore for the good of the home."

"Simply the name withdrawn?"
"That is all, and while some of the members hated to give up, we thought it best. Every department of the home will be carried on just as heretofore. No hard feelings exists between the ladies. All are working hand in hand. There will be some kind of new society formed which will be run under some appropriate name."

"Is the home prosperous?"
"Yes, and we expect it to do a good work.
Our object is to get it self sustaining, but it will take some time to do that. The ladies have had a severe struggle. In a short time we desire to open a restaurant at the home where gentlemen can get their meals, and we hope to realize from this a nice sum every month."

His wild experience Thursday night, the facts of which were given in yesterday's Constitution, caused a great deal of talk yesterday, and nearly every one who met Prater during the day had something to say to him about the matter. Yesterday morning, Prater met the young lady at a friend's home, and she told him that it was not her fault, and that her people had her in the house and would not let her out. "Here is the license," said Prater, as he took from his pocket the document.

"What are you going to do with them?" asked the lady. "Burn them."
"You wouldn't do that?" "You are right I would, and here goes."

The little slip of paper which had cost a dollar and seventy-five cents was placed in the the ashes. Prater turned his head and re-peated a few verses of "Alas! My Heart is Ashes."

"It is all over now," said the young lady.

NO MORE HIGH PRICES JEWELRY, WATCHES AND DIAMONDS AWORD TO THE PUBLIC!

The "fancy prices" on nearly every article in our line have long ranged above a reasonable figure. Profits have not been in accord with other lines, and for this reason, appreciating the demand of the times, we, as dealers in what might be called the luxuries of life, have determined to drop them to a sensible basis, content to reap a legitimate interest on the money we have invested in our business.

For instance, we will say that you have been paying $12 or $15 for a watch charm or locket. We are selling the same article NOW at from $5 to $8. Note the difference in this one thing alone. Everything in our store is correspondingly reduced. During the late holiday season we astonished everybody with the low prices of our Parisian novelties. We intend to keep up this idea all the year round. Now if you want to be convinced that we are honest in our proposals, ask the price of any article we handle, then quietly go elsewhere and price the same goods. We are sure you will come back to us and buy. This is a fair proposition. We submit these facts for YOUR consideration.

Give us a call and be convinced.

B. F. Jacobs, the chairman of the interdational executive committee; Wr. Excel. of Illinois, the great singer of the west; Rev. C. M. Morton, and other distinguished Sunday school workers, will be in attendance, and it is hoped that Mr. Vincent will also be here. We shall give full particulars on Sunday moning. dso be dere. Sunday morning.

M'lle Rhea.

The sale of seats for that charming artiste The sale of seats for that charming artiste began today, and they are going up lively. Her visit will be another triumph, and once more Atlanta will prove that real merit is always sure of an ovation. All persons who have any idea of going should reserve their seats early, as the back seats will probably be the only ones left the day of each performance, if any are left.

In referring to Rhea's appearance in the "Power of Love," the Boston Advertiser says:

"As we already said, M'lle Rhea appeared to fine advantage in "the lovely garnish of a boy," and her beauty and grace made its due impression upon the audience; she was never for a moment more than a boy to the eye. Piccolino is supposed to be a Viola in light comedy. The Piccolino of M'lle Rhea was penetrated with flashes of real power. Of prettiness, of gentle gayety and lightness of touch, there was abundance."

Baird's Mammoth Minstrels. m the Rochester Dally Democrat

An audience which filled the academy greeted I. W. Baird's minstrels last night. This is one of the troupes which always perform the whole bill, and do it so well as to make one desirous of some and do it so well as to make one desirous of seeingthem a second time. In the first part were many songs by different members of the company. Mr. Emest Sinclair and Harry Nelson taking particularly with the audience—and a good orchestral accompaniment. The end men, Joe Hart and Lew Heesdeite, were first-class. The entertainment was a good one and worthy the generous patronage it

She can dance, she can sing, her magnificent horsemanship is proverbial, her grace at tennis is a matter of history, her beauty brings a world to her feet; but her crowning grace, the consummate flower of all her virtues, is that superb proof of her self-reliance: "She turns her own nusic."

Mr. Henry Singleton, of Macon, was paralyzed in both limbs for six months. He was carried to Dr. Wilbur's office in a hack. He took Dr. Wilbur's treatment, and is now all well and works on one of his drays every day.

Mrs. Mary Smith, of Verona, Miss., was pronounced incurable and her disease was called consumption. She heard of Dr. Wilbur's skill, and went clear to Nashville, Tenn., to have him treat her. In four months she was a well woman.

Bertha A., daughter of Valentine Kahn. of ith Cotton Avenne, Macon, was sick eight years, was treated by eminent doctors of Macon, Atlanta and New York without deriving any benefit. As a last resort she applied to Dr. Wilbur, and today is a well girl.

resort she applied to br. well girl.

Mr. Hunt, manager of Clarendon hotel, Memphis, has a girl now in his employ named Ward, who had not seen out of her right eye since 1878, and the left one was nearly gone. Dr. Wilbur restored her sight, so now she worksevery day at the stored her sight, so now she worksevery day at the

Mr. Thomas Long, Hall's Cross Roads, Knox county, Team, was as deaf as a post for seven years. Dr. Wilbur cured him.

Mr. C. L. Benson, of Lexington, Ky., was deaf for fourteen years. His father was a physician, and took him to see some very eminent M. D's, but did him no good. Dr. Wilbur made him all right in a short time.

took him to see some very eminent M. It's, but this min good. Dr. Wilbur made him all right in a short time.

Mrs. F. A. Nichol, 382 South Summer street, Nashville, had backache, bearing down, all gone, tired feelings, dizzy head and other female complaints for several years, and was cured in four mouths by Dr. Wilbur, without being subjected to the embar assing procedure of an examination.

Miss Laura Henderson, 195 Leonard street, Chattanooga, had an ulcer on her arm six inches long, over three years. She went to eminent M. D's in Cincinnati, Lynchburg, Atlanta, Rome and Chattanooga, and none of them could cure it, but advised her to have her arm cut off as the only remedy to save her life. She also had a terrible case of catarrh, which rendered her breath offensive. She heard of Dr. Wilbur's great success, and tried him as a last resort before having her arm amputated. The doctor cured her catarrh and healed her arm entirely in two months.

The doctor invites correspondence from people at a distance, but never answers any letters unless they contain two 2-cent stamps.

Those above are only a few of the many testimonials obtained by Dr. Wilbur all over Kennicky, Tennessee and Georgia.
